All Mental illness can be cured,
 A conservation of wellness is a misunderstanding of wellness.
 We must allow wellness to be gained individually.

Psychological tools. Opportunity ,freedom to make mistakes ,allows freedom to succeed.
 Circumstance/psychological atmosphere/resources.

If you were diagnosed as 'Schizophrenic',you would lose mental health.

Togetherness neither can be foisted , no, but fostered.

Civilisations are based in sound practice for the vulnerable.

The impetus to tow the state line, historically has come from fear of total state control of your humanity.
 We have this in the mental illness system.

The idea that we are oppressing you. For your own good, is the most oppressive function of a state that has lost it's humanity.

Planting ourselves in the third millennium, nearing the 20's, we cannot be blind to the forces that could overwhelm humanity- War, Depression and Computers, are clearly pernicious to human life, but the new harm on the block is not critiqued- I.T.

We have moved the land to the Cyber Space- the enthusiasm is waning, as we can see, I do, new forms of the same problems.

Yes there are new solutions, but we have left the ground, if we took the tools available now to the society we once had, we could have solution, but all we have is speedy progress, which is an ideation.

I would like to see a foundational principle or principles of happy LIVES.

I am totally sick of the term 'Mental Health' -

= relates to sickness= bigotry=psychiatry=unchecked and hideous human betrayal=

Just as the Church has been found betraying human lives, so now the new religious sooths- Psychiatry has unchecked and hideous power, that has corrupted it's reason.

Psychiatry requires too much attack on sound values for it to be supportable.

I feel that as a branch of medicine, it does not stack up.

It weakens social engagement.
